

Method-Driven Smart Further Education

HÖVELER HOLZMANN's Training Academy is a training program for beginners, advanced learners and experts in the field of procurement and supply chain management.

The Training Academy's Concept

Our training concept is aligned to our clients' requirements. That's why we consider the performance level of each single participant in our training curriculum and thus differentiate between the three skill levels: beginners, advanced learners and experts.

The training contents for our participants are adapted individually and supplemented with industry- and commodity group-specific contents or training units. Training contents and formats that our clients have already established can be integrated into the training academy, too.

An individual training plan ensures the best learning results and achievement of the training objectives.

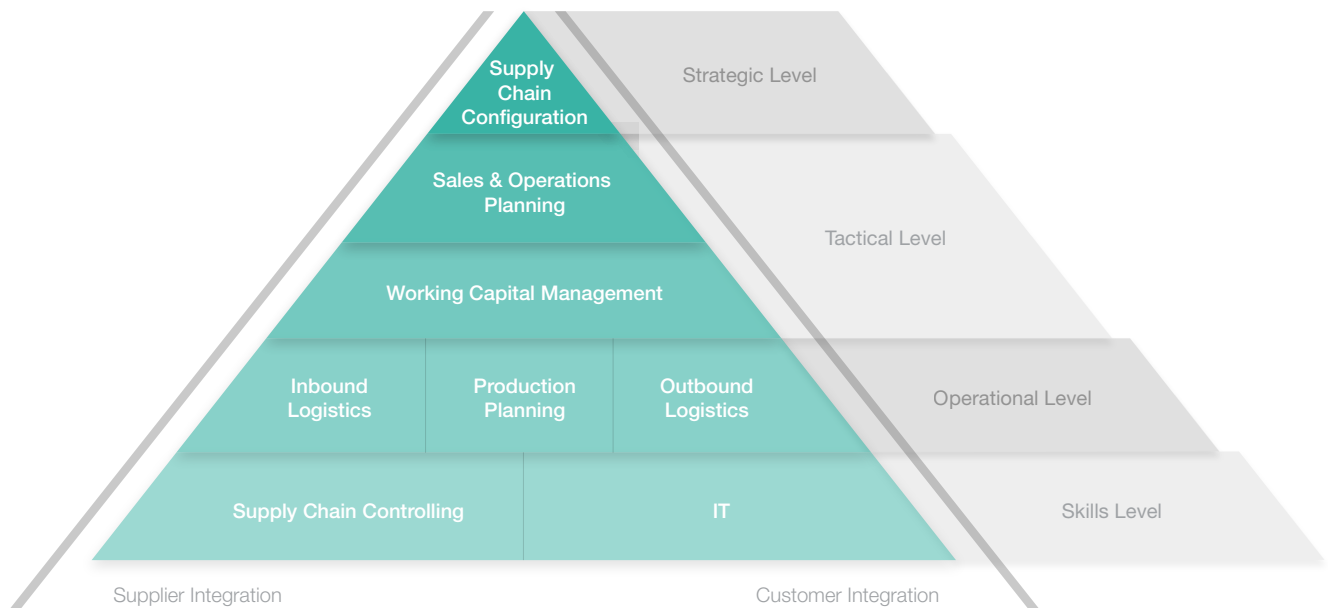

Procurement Training Program

The training curriculum on the complex of procurement themes spans all relevant task areas of procurement. Aligned to personal training objectives, we provide you with valuable know-how about controlling, core and support tasks in procurement. In doing so, the training spectrum ranges from defining procurement objectives and designing procurement strategies, to conducting the strategic sourcing process (strategic sourcing) in five steps, straight through to procurement controlling.

Supply Chain Management Training Programs

The training curriculum on the complex of supply chain management themes gives you valuable know-how about strategic, tactical, and operational fundamentals, taking into account the skill levels. Thematically, we cover all key areas: supply chain configuration, sales & operations planning, working capital management, inbound and outbound logistics, production planning as well as supply chain controlling and information technology. We individually gear training contents towards your specific requirements.

Soft Skills

Alongside the professional know-how, we also train you in the soft skills so you can impress and convince as a good purchaser. For example, we sharpen your knowledge in intercultural negotiating, in solving complex problems or in the management-oriented set-up of documents such as presentations. We moreover offer special training programs for managers: managing directors/executive board members with responsibility for procurement and procurement managers have the opportunity to further develop themselves professionally and personally in one-to-one coaching sessions with experienced trainers.
